Hunger
Project.

Annual Report 2019

Our Vision.

A world where every woman, man and child leads a healthy, fulfilling life of self-reliance and dignity.

Our 3 Pillars.

1. Start by empowering women as key change agents.
2. Mobilize entire communities into self-reliant action.
3. Foster effective partnerships to engage local government.

Our Mission.

To end hunger and poverty by pioneering sustainable, grassroots, women-centered strategies and advocating for their widespread adoption in countries throughout the world.

Our Principles.

1. Human Dignity.
2. Gender Equality.
3. Empowerment.
4. Leverage.
5. Interconnectedness.
6. Sustainability.
7. Social Transformation.
8. Holistic Approach.
9. Decentralization.
10. Transformative Leadership.

A letter from our Acting CEO.

Rancho Pineda, Mexico, 2019

We are pleased to present to you our 2019 Annual Report. It's an overview of some of our most significant moments of impact over the course of the year – all made possible through the bold and courageous collaboration of local community members, investors, staff and strategic partners.

Our programs reach 16.5 million people across 23 countries in Africa, Latin America and South Asia.

This mighty force of changemakers stretches around the world and across time, working tirelessly together to build a better future. That is who the Hunger Project is – what we stand for, what our strengths are, and the impact we have on the world: we are a force.

And while this report captures the story of our impact over 2019, we write this amid a global pandemic. So we present this to you both as a celebration of our successes in 2019 and as a special invitation to revisit (or learn about for the first time!) our organization's purpose and value during this trying time for humanity.

The pandemic continues to show us that the world is truly interconnected; we have to work together to achieve solutions to global problems, whether it be COVID-19 or chronic, persistent hunger. Look to the future with us and find ways to continue to support the work we do and your partners around the world.

Thank you for investing in the hundreds of thousands of individuals leading their communities during this challenging time. Thank you for investing in the power of transformative leadership.

This is our core asset: Half a million local leaders.

We have always known that local leadership is the key to community development that works. That is why training leaders is at the heart of everything we do. We support people to become the authors of their own development. The gains made in every community where we work are gains made because of these 500,000 local leaders.

This is our stand: Reach everyone.

We have always known that community development that works, must work for everyone. That is why—in the face of a world that routinely marginalizes women—we put women at the heart of everything we do. That is why human dignity is the very first of our principles.

Lisa North
Acting CEO, The Hunger Project

An update on COVID-19.

In the face of the COVID-19 pandemic, the core tenets of our work are as relevant as ever. Our long-term commitment to promoting local leadership, strong systems and resilience are all critical as communities navigate the health, economic and social impacts of COVID-19. The virus is predicted to move up to 132 million people into conditions of hunger in 2020 alone (Food and Agriculture Organization, UN), making our work even more critical right now.

We have mobilized trained, local leaders in 13 countries around the world to create COVID-resilient communities in the 13,600 villages where we work. Our program leadership created a Framework for Action designed to be tailored to each local context, empowering community leaders with the tools and information they need to keep themselves, their families and their communities safe.

Bangladesh, Charghat Upazila, 2020

Ghana, Apau-Wawase Epicenter, 2020

Our Framework for Action at the Community Level.

The 5-point plan is as follows:

1. Spreading awareness and understanding...of how to stay safe by promoting hand washing, physical distancing, and wearing face coverings in public and debunking misinformation.

2. Ensuring access to hand washing stations...for every household and in key public places and providing education on proper washing techniques.

3. Identifying symptomatic residents...and assisting them during isolation and quarantine and linking them to health officials where possible.

4. Ensuring relief for those who are most vulnerable...either through public safety nets or community philanthropy, and encouraging innovation to preserve livelihoods.

5. Promoting community peace, trust and cohesion...by introducing strategies to halt stigma, social unrest, gender-based violence and child marriage.

Response Highlights.

The community-led response to COVID-19 looks different in each country. We are proud to say that your partnership enabled our local volunteer leaders to quickly mobilize their communities and respond with ingenuity and strength. Some of the outstanding results they created include:*

- 5,712 Tippy Taps installed in communities to bring simple handwashing stations close to homes.
- 8,000 Elected Women and 52,248 Adolescent Girls, trained by THP formed phone trees and WhatsApp groups to deliver accurate, easy-to-understand health information to more than 500,000 people.
- 30,215 community members participated in Water, Sanitation and Hygiene (WASH) workshops so they are personally equipped to prevent the spread.
- Health posters were translated into three indigenous languages in Mexico as part of a targeted partnership with UNFPA. (See graphic above.)
- 199,695 face masks made and distributed by 'sewing armies' that have been set up in some areas to learn from one another and keep collectively strong.
- 47,410 kg of hand sanitizer were made and distributed by mobilized epicenter communities in Africa. These disinfectants are used in conjunction with handwashing as a way to support hygienic practices in the home.
- 183,215 public health leaflets distributed. These have often been translated into local languages or the information is shown in pictures, so that as many people as possible can understand them.

Executive summary.

This report highlights the impact of our work with 16.5 million people reached by our programs across more than 13,600 communities in 2019.

In nine countries of Africa, through our Epicenter Strategy, communities are leading holistic, women-centered programs, reaching 1.2 million people. The goal is a declaration of their own accomplishments and self-reliance — meaning they are set up to sustain and further the work begun in partnership with The Hunger Project. In 2019 alone, eight epicenters — comprising nearly 77,000 people — celebrated self-reliance. The continuing work of these communities is a demonstration of the sustainability of community-led approaches.

In India, we partnered with over 40 local organizations to empower 8,000 elected women representatives, each of them champions for gender equality, social and economic development, and nutrition. These women represent 1,600 panchayats (local village councils) in six states and have a reach of more than 10 million people. At the regional level, federations of women leaders participated in workshops to strengthen their voice and provide a platform for peer learning and exchange.

In Bangladesh, we mobilized local volunteer “animators,” women and youth leaders, and local government representatives in 180 unions (clusters of rural villages), whose work to carry out holistic, bottom-up strategies to achieve the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals reached more than 5 million people in 2019.

In Mexico and Peru, we supported the implementation of community-led development initiatives. In 2019, these initiatives reached nearly 25,000 people in 41 isolated, rural communities. Through their work with our programs, individuals learn how to be active citizens and bring change to their communities.

In 2019.

151,683

people accessed health services in Africa

129,105

participants in income-generating and skills workshops

43,310

participants in the Safe Schools For Girls program in Bangladesh

105,382

people trained in women's empowerment in Africa

92,868

participants in activities stopping violence against women

107,155

participants in Water, Sanitation & Hygiene (WASH) workshops and campaigns

Highlights from our global community.

We are celebrating the progress and achievements of our partners by sharing just a handful of the many highlights from our Program Countries in 2019.

Our work ending hunger is driven by communities and Program Country teams in Africa, South Asia and Latin America alongside our global investors.

India, Bihar, 2019

1 Elected Women Representatives demand equality in India.

Women in much of the world are systematically denied the resources, freedom of action and voice in decision-making to bring about critical social change. In early 2019, THP-India organized a convention in Bihar (a state in India) to address widespread gender inequities.

Elected Women Representatives and girls from around Bihar who have participated in our training programs presented detailed manifestos demanding that government authorities pay attention to their needs and concerns in the village councils and protect their rights as equal citizens in a democracy.

Highlights from our global community.

2 Activating young leaders to create a vision for the future.

THP-Mexico was invited to host a Vision, Commitment and Action workshop during the youth-focused program Leading by Example, a sideline event of the Nobel Peace Summit in Merida, Mexico. Over 100 youth delegates and academics participated in the workshop, and over 700 people watched the video online. During the Summit, participants had the opportunity to learn from and interact with Nobel Peace Laureates, their peers and diverse non-profit leaders from around the world.

3 Building partnerships in Asia.

Through a partnership with Local Governance Initiative and Network (LOGIN), we are sharing our strategies to promote women's participation in elections and governance with grassroots organizations in Bhutan and Mongolia.

4 Self-reliant epicenters in all African Program Countries.

As of the end of 2019, all African Program Countries were home to at least one, if not more, self-reliant epicenter communities (with the exception of Zambia, our newest Program Country where we first started work in July 2019). Across 44 of the self-reliant epicenter communities, child marriage has decreased by 23% and there has been a 30% decrease in the prevalence of diarrheal disease in children under 5*.

Ghana, Kyempe Epicenter, 2019

* Data relates to 44 self-reliant epicenters as of July 2020.

Highlights from our global community.

Bangladesh, 2019

5 Mobilizing youth for action in Bangladesh.

Governments around the world are historically minimally responsive to youths' needs when it comes to health, education and employment, creating a cycle of violence, poverty and civil unrest. To address this, THP-Bangladesh works with youth through the Youth Ending Hunger program. Together with the British Council, we have created PRODIGY (Promoting Democratic Inclusion and Governance through Youth) to increase meaningful civic participation of youth in local governance and create a more inclusive society by promoting accountability, transparency, inclusivity and social cohesion for a brighter future. A national youth summit was held in Dhaka to showcase the work PRODIGY members have done in their communities to increase young people's access to government information and services and establish themselves as leaders.

6 Collaborating for an end to child marriage.

In Benin, Bangladesh, Ghana and Uganda, through the multi-organization partnership called Her Choice, we have undertaken advocacy efforts for promoting girl's rights and halting child marriage at the regional and national levels. In 2019 in Bangladesh, for example, 257 child marriages have been halted by youth activists, including many girls who were able to halt their own arranged marriages.

7 Defining self-reliance in Mexico.

The demonstration of clear and powerful success is critical to our mission of achieving the widespread adoption of our methodology. So, in the spirit of Build Simple, Measure What Matters and Deliver Learning, we finalized a new list of indicators to measure and demonstrate self-reliance in Mexico. THP-Mexico has begun using the simplified list to share outputs, outcomes and impacts.

Highlights from our global community.

8 Partnering for community-led development in Zambia.

We expanded into Zambia as our ninth African Program Country in July!

This partnership with Heifer International and Restless Development marks the first time we are working in a consortium with two organizational partners as part of the National Chapter of the Movement for Community-led Development.

The pioneering strategy of the launch leverages key pieces of each organization's expertise: THP's Epicenter Strategy, Heifer International's Agriculture & Farming, and Restless Development's Youth Activities.

Representatives from each organization and funding partner attended a ceremony in October.

9 Influencing national governments.

The Movement for Community-led Development is a coalition of civil society and governments working in effective partnership to achieve locally led development goals. In 2019, the Movement launched three new national chapters: Kenya in January, Togo in April, and Zambia in October. This brings the total to 11 active national chapters globally.

And in Benin and Uganda, we were invited by the national governments to provide input into their national 2030 strategies, shaping a future that puts people in charge of their own development.

10 Empowered girls in Uganda.

The “Safe Choices for Deaf Girls” project, in partnership with UK Aid, aims to empower girls with hearing impairments in and around the Mbale District of Uganda to make safe choices in their sexual and reproductive health, and have access to health services which often under-serve deaf girls.

Senegal, Coki Epicenter self-reliance celebration, 2019

Celebrating self-reliant communities in Africa.

Our holistic Epicenter Strategy in Africa creates a path to sustainable self-reliance through four phases over about eight years. Communities build the confidence to be leaders — in equal numbers of women and men — of their own development, unlocking local capacity for change and declaring self-reliance.

There are currently 47 self-reliant epicenter communities in Africa and each year more communities reach this milestone.

In 2019 alone, eight communities comprising 76,996 people declared self-reliance.

Ghana, Asenema Epicenter, 2019

Supporting the resilience of women in Bangladesh.

“ Solving hunger is not just an issue of food; it’s a human issue that requires innovative thinking and action to solve it. ”

Dr. Badiul Majumdar

Global Vice President & Country Director
The Hunger Project-Bangladesh

The Unleashed Women Network has 9,000 active members across Bangladesh who each play important roles in their own communities as activists and animators (local volunteer leaders trained by The Hunger Project).

The Hunger Project runs Animator Trainings in which members of the Unleashed Women Network learn about the factors that contribute to hunger, such as the importance of women’s leadership, independent income generation, and health and nutrition. The training runs for four days, and the Animators are equipped with the knowledge, skills and resources they need to transform their lives and empower others in their community to make changes.

The Animators then train their families, peers and communities, building awareness about issues such as child marriage and sexual harassment, and sharing nutritional information with pregnant women and mothers with young children. They also monitor the positive changes made in their communities through these activities and report back to The Hunger Project periodically.

In 2019 in Bangladesh.

- 5.09 million people reached across 3,771 communities.
- 1,672 volunteers trained to become local leaders shifting mindsets to transform their communities.
- 42,129 people attended courtyard meetings about stopping child marriage, to put an end to this harmful practice.

Women’s Leadership Convention.

On the December 7 , 2019, 1,200 leaders from the Unleashed Women Network attended the Women Leaders Convention in Dhaka, Bangladesh. The women came from 31 different districts across the country. The convention provided a space for the attendees to come together, share information with other women and renew their commitment to continue the fight for equality in their communities.

“ The power of women intensifies by many folds when women come together as free citizens, express themselves, bring new ideas and learn from one another. We have made fresh commitments to our work and feel that together we will achieve our goals.”

Nasima Akhter

Program Director
The Hunger Project-Bangladesh

As a result of the convention, the women agreed to recommit to and prioritize the following actions:

- Play transformative leadership roles in their communities to create a hunger-free and self-reliant Bangladesh
- Mobilize like-minded women to join the network
- Take effective measures to reduce any form of discrimination against women and girls
- Support their communities and the institutions working within their communities (such as The Hunger Project) to realize the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals

Meet Anju. A changemaker and pioneer in income generation.

Anju is 34 years old. She was married at the age of 13 and had her first child a year later — a daughter who dropped out of school and was married by the age of 16.

In parts of Bangladesh, many families struggle to afford to send their children to school. Because boys tend to be more valued than girls, parents typically pull the girls out of school and marry them off, even before the legal age of 18.

Anju decided then that she wouldn't let her grandchildren be part of the same cycle. She would show them that they could be self-reliant. Seeking an opportunity to own her destiny, Anju undertook The Hunger Project's Animator training.

Following her training, Anju and five other women began a self-help savings group to launch an income-generating project of their own. Anju lives in a rural farming community in a lush landscape that grows bananas, oranges, rice and more. Her group also began making and selling their own organic compost.

“ I will tell my grandchildren, boy or girl, that the most important thing is to be educated, be empowered, and be self-dependent. ”

With the profits, they reinvested in themselves — buying sewing machines for women launching tailoring services, buying goats for women launching agricultural projects, and running health and education training for the community.

There are now 20 women in Anju's self-help group who have saved and loaned over $1,000 to other women pioneering their own income-generating activities. When these women make a profit, they reinvest a portion in the self-help group, so the savings and loan group continues to grow together.

The full financial statements, audited by BDO USA, LLP, are available on our website at www.thp.org.

All figures have been converted to US$. For the Statement of Financial Position, the year end exchange rate was used. For the Statement of Activities, the annual average exchange rate was used.

††This total includes all funds raised from the entire Hunger Project family, as distinct from the revenue reported on the previous page. In addition to supporting programs (as reflected in the U.S. audited figure), our Partner Countries (marked with a†) raise funds for their own expenses, including education and advocacy programs, as well as fundraising and management and general expenses. Those expenses (approximately US$3.9 million in 2019) are not included in the U.S. consolidated audit. Independent audits for each Partner Country are available upon request.

Legacy Circle.

Over 160 individuals participate as members of our Legacy Circle, and as such, have committed to include The Hunger Project in their estate plan — through trusts, bequests or making The Hunger Project a beneficiary of their insurance or retirement plan. They are willing to be listed here in order to inspire others to do the same.
